ASU professor helps students make their own mark

Congrats to Richard Herrera – an associate professor with the School of Politics and Global Studies - who is being honored with the Faculty Teaching Achievement Award at this year's Founders' Day! This accomplishment has given him a chance to reflect on his time at ASU and the impact he's made on his students and colleagues within SPGS.

“As someone who had Rick as a professor, mentor, administrator, co-director and colleague, I can say with 100% certainty that he left an indelible mark on our school, on thousands of students' lives, and in the lives of his colleagues and, thus, is very deserving of such an award,” said SPGS senior lecturer Gina Woodall.

ASU alumna lets people be a part of the solution

Congratulations to School of Politics and Global Studies alumna Karrin Taylor Robson who is being honored with the Alumni Achievement Award at Founders' Day on Feb. 25th!

"The people who have received this award in the past I hold in the highest esteem," shared Taylor Robson. "The professional accomplishments and personal stories are phenomenal, so to be in that group of people is humbling."

Legislative duo reflects on ASU experience, path to state politics

For husband-and-wife legislative duo Arizona Sen. Juan Mendez and Rep. Athena Salman, Arizona State University was more than just an academic incubator: It was where the couple first met, and it marked the beginning of their political careers.

The two first met in college when Salman gave a presentation to the ASU Young Democrats, of which Mendez was a member.

“Afterwards, I had the happenstance of sitting next to him, and was really impressed by all the cool questions he was asking me about the projects I was working on,” said Salman.

ASU student pursues her passion for global politics in DC

After Professor Okechukwu Iheduru’s “African Politics and Society” class sparked a desire to learn more about the country, School of Politics and Global Studies student Maya Perez went on to pursue an internship with the Corporate Council on Africa (CCA) in Washington, D.C while participating in the Policy Design Studio and Internship Program through the McCain Institute.

“I am so grateful to be doing something I love,” said Perez, “There is so much to gain from being exposed to an environment like D.C.”
